

GRADUATE SEMINARS 2018-19

WINTER 2019

Philosophy 275B, Michael Nelson – Proseminar in Metaphysics and Epistemology

Philosophy 280, Adam Harmer – Substance in Early Modern Philosophy

This seminar will look at the notion of substance in various early modern philosophers. The central questions driving the seminar will be: What is a substance? Can we/how do we know anything about the nature of substance? Is the term “substance” even meaningful? Philosophers to be included: Hobbes, Descartes, Locke, Spinoza, Leibniz, Hume.

Philosophy 280, Pierre Keller - German Idealism and the Dynamics of Reason in the Copernican Revolution

Philosophy 282, Maudemarie Clark – Hegel’s Logic, Part I (with Andreja Novakovic)

Philosophy 283, Agnieszka Jaworska – Valuing, Caring, and Practical Reasoning

Philosophy 276, Andrews Reath – 3rd and 4th Year Research Workshop